HONORS

Karrer Medal 2009

The University of Zurich and the Paul Karrer Foundation are proud to announce that Prof. Akira Suzuki, Hokkaido University, is the 50th Paul Karrer Medalist. The medal is given in recognition of Professor Suzuki's contributions to the reactivity of boron reagents and palladium catalysts culminating in exceptionally useful methods for the development of novel nanomaterials and biologically active agents.

Award lecture on September 10, 2009, 17.00 in the Calatrava Library, Rämistrasse 74/75, Zurich.

SCS Prize Winners 2009

The Board of the Swiss Chemical Society has elected the SCS Prize Laureates 2009.

The Werner Prize 2009, awarded to a promising young scientist for outstanding independent chemical research, was awarded to Prof. Roland K.O. Sigel, Institute of Inorganic Chemistry, University of Zurich.

The Dr. Max Lüthi Award was awarded to Simon Lang, University of Applied Sciences Northwestern Switzerland, for his excellent diploma work 'Immunosuppressive Drugs and their Interaction with the Efflux Transporter P-Glycoprotein'.

Both prizes will be conferred at the next SCS Fall Meeting at EPFL in Lausanne.

SCG organisiert viertägige Konferenz über Polymere

Das Scientific Forum der Schweizerischen Chemischen Gesellschaft an der ILMAC 2010 wird den Polymeren gewidmet sein.

Die Polymer-Chemie ist ein attraktives Forschungsgebiet mit wichtigen Anwendungen in Gebieten wie den Materialwissenschaften, der Nanotechnologie, der Medizin und der Nahrungsmittelindustrie.

Geplant sind zwei Tage zur Polymer-Forschung, ein Tag für Schüler und interessierte Laien sowie ein Tag über die Karriere-möglichkeiten junger Chemiker. Der Eintritt ist frei.

Die ILMAC 2010 findet vom 21.–24. September 2010 auf dem Messegelände Basel statt.
